“ Danube partnership for mobility and entrepreneurship” Project, e-MS code ROBG - 186, project code 16.4.2.067
Co-financed from the FEDR within the Romania-Bulgaria Interreg V Program

ACTIVITY 11

Creating the network of entrepreneurs from the cross-border green economy

The green economy represents the economic activity based on the concept of sustainable development, on the use of renewable natural resources, on the reduction of hydrocarbons consumption, one of the important objectives being the protection of the environment. Other objectives consist of water and waste management as well as territorial (organic farming, habitat conservation, afforestation, etc.). There are advantageous sectors, such as: manufacture of solar cells, wind turbines, fuel cells, bicycles, tree planting, wind farms, etc. Among the favored professions can be listed: forestry, hydrologist, geologist, architect, eco-economist, engineer in the fields of wind turbines and solar cells, etc. The green economy concerns us because it can make a significant contribution to limiting environmental risks, which, in the long term, can have a major impact on daily life. In the opinion of specialists of the United Nations, it actually means an economic environment with less harmful effects on the environment and with substantial benefits on society and each individual.

Karl Burkart defines a green economy as being based on six main sectors:

1. renewable energy (solar, wind etc)
2. “green” constructions (eg LEED constructions - Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design)
3. alternative fuels (electric or hybrid vehicles, etc.)
4. water management (water treatment, rainwater collection systems, etc.)
5. waste management (recycling, etc.)
